Expertise

Mirjam Vögeli specialises in corporate, commercial, liability and contract law. She regularly advises and represents public and private companies in a broad range of matters, including cases within an Asian context. Her legal practice also encompasses charitable foundations as well as various types of voluminous litigation, including complex liability claims against directors and officers, contractual disputes and other corporate and commercial litigation.

In addition, Mirjam Vögeli has extensive experience in inheritance and estate law, in particular with regard to estate planning, inheritance contracts, wills, administration of executor mandates, and dispute resolution in these areas. Her broad legal knowledge and areas of practice enable her to provide a diverse array of advice to high net worth individuals (HNWIs) and families in all aspects of their private and business activities.

Mirjam Vögeli is a board member of a Swiss charitable foundation.
